I always thought that Devery was a big fake. It doesn't do me any harm to have a dub like levery talk about me that way. It does me good. Every one here in New York knows why he has it in for me. He snews where I got my money, and the least talk and the frontiating conventions. York knows where I got my money, and that I got every dollar of it honestly out of my fousiness. He knows that I didn't get underhanded while I was in office.

Theyery talks about Tammany Hall and the way it ought to be run. Now you can judge a man by the way he treats his friends and the men who have stood by him. The one man that put Devery up and made him was Richard Croker. Now he has turned against the man who made him Chief of Police and gave him power. Why, Devery is the one man who lost the election for us last your. If it hadn't been for him we'd like your office.

Mr. Barnes's influence as chairman of the Executive Committee of the Republican State Committee has been gradually shattered among the heads of the State departments and up-State Republican leaders, through his using his place to advance his own personal fortunes to the extent that he does. A number of heads of departments have complained bitterly against Mr. Barnes's interference in questions that arise between the departments and the department printers. I was astonished when I read the address of District Attorney Jerome made recently at Cambridge, his criffeisms were making and unfair, and it occurred to me when I read his speech that the distinguished District Attorney could better occury his time by remaining at home and attending to the business of his great office, and make an effort to receem his promises made before election than to go about the country criticising his associates who were elected on the same ticket and but for whom and their popularity Mr. Jerome might never have been elevated to the District Attorneyahip.

This is not the first time that he has seen it to attack Mr. Low of his appointees, it seems to me that these attacks are carefully studied and prepared, and behind them all Mr. Jerome has some sinister motive. This is not strenuous life, he is a failure, because, as a distinguished citizen once sand of him, he is "superstrenuous", and he is too young to have foibles. I personally like Mr. Jerome, but I fear he has what is commonly called a "swelled head."

If Mr. Jerome is properly quoted in the morning papers as saying that one of his county detectives was justified in shooting a poor unfortunate for committing a misdemeaner, then he is not fif to hold his place, and the Governor, in my opinion, would be justified in removing him.

The resolution indorsing the administration was adopted unanimously. There ministration of Mayor Low and said
